Provably Fair at Stake Originals: full available documentation

The following texts and formulas describe Stake Originals, including the standalone game Chicken. This is a separate area from InOut Chicken Road 2. The documentation and code examples are approved, and the results have been verified. The examples are reproduced preserving the source syntax.

Overview

Solving the Trust Issue with Online Gambling

The underlying concept of provable fairness is that players have the ability to prove and verify that their results are fair and unmanipulated. This is achieved through the use of a commitment scheme , along with cryptographic hashing.

The commitment scheme is used to ensure that the player has an influence on all results generated. Cryptographic hashing is used to ensure that the casino also remains honest to this commitment scheme. Both concepts combined creates a trust-less environment when gambling online.

This is simplified in the following representation:

fair result = operators input (hashed) + players input

Implementation

Random Number Generation

For each verifiable bet, a client seed, a server seed, a nonce and a cursor are used as the input parameters for the random number generation function. This function utilises the cryptographic hash function HMAC_SHA256 to generate bytes which are then used as the foundation for how we generate provably fair random outcomes on our platform.

// Random number generation based on following inputs: serverSeed, clientSeed, nonce and cursor function byteGenerator({ serverSeed, clientSeed, nonce, cursor }) { // Setup cursor variables
 let currentRound = Math.floor(cursor / 32);
 let currentRoundCursor = cursor;
 currentRoundCursor -= currentRound * 32;

 // Generate outputs until cursor requirement fullfilled while (true) {
 // HMAC function used to output provided inputs into bytes const hmac = createHmac('sha256', serverSeed);
 hmac.update(`${clientSeed}:${nonce}:${currentRound}`);
 const buffer = hmac.digest();

 // Update cursor for next iteration of loop while (currentRoundCursor < 32) { yield Number(buffer[currentRoundCursor]);
 currentRoundCursor += 1;
 currentRoundCursor = 0;
 currentRound += 1;
 }
}

Server Seed

The server seed is generated by our system as a random 64-character hex string. You are then provided with an encrypted hash of that generated server seed before you place any bets. The reason we provide you with the encrypted form of the server seed is to ensure that the un-hashed server seed cannot be changed by the casino operator, and that the player cannot calculate the results beforehand.

To reveal the server seed from its hashed version, the seed must be rotated by the player, which triggers the replacement with a newly generated one.

From this point you are able to verify that the hashed server seed matches that of the un-hashed server seed. This process can be verified via our un-hashed server seed function found in the menu above.

Client Seed

The client seed belongs to the player and is used to ensure they have influence on the randomness of the outcomes generated. Without this component of the algorithm, the server seed alone would have complete leverage over the outcome of each bet.

All players are free to edit and change their client seed regularly to create a new chain of random upcoming outcomes. This ensures the player has absolute control over the generation of the result, similar to cutting the deck at a brick and mortar casino.

During registration, a client seed is created for you by your browser, to ensure your initial experience with the site goes uninterrupted. Whilst this randomly generated client seed is considered suitable, we highly recommend that you choose your own, so that your influence is included in the randomness.

You can do this via the fairness modal.

Nonce

The nonce is simply a number that increments as every new bet is made. Due to the nature of the SHA256 cryptographic function, this creates a completely new result each time, without having to generate a new client seed and server seed.

The implementation of nonce, ensures we remain committed to your client seed and server seed pair, whilst generating new results for each bet placed.

Cursor (Incremental Number)

We use 4 bytes of data to generate a single game result, and because SHA256 is limited to 32 bytes, we utilise this implementation of a cursor to give us the ability to create more game events without having to modify our provable fair algorithm.

The cursor is only iterated over when the game being played requires the generation of more than 8 (32 bytes / 4 bytes) possible outcomes. For example: when we need to use more than 8 cards in a game of blackjack.

The cursor starts as 0 and gets increased by 1 every time the 32 bytes are returned by the HMAC_SHA256 function. If we don't require more than 8 random numbers to be generated for the game events, then the cursor does not increment as there is no need to generate any additional possible game outcomes.

Games with more than 1 incremental number:

Hilo (Unlimited to cover required amount of cards)

Keno (2 increments for every game due to 10 possible outcomes)

Mines (3 increments per game for 24 possible bomb locations)

Pump (3 increments per game for 24 possible pop chances)

Chicken (3 increments per game for 20 possible death chances)

Plinko (2 increments per game to cover possible 16 decisions)

Blackjack (Unlimited to cover required amount of cards)

Video Poker (7 increments to generate 52 possible cards in a full deck)

Snakes (2 increments for every game due to 10 total dice rolls)

Slots (The incremental number is only utilised for bonus rounds)

Flip (3 increments per game for 20 flips)

Rock Paper Scissors (Unlimited to cover required amount of cards and 3 increments per autobet game to cover 20 max cards)

Bars (4 increments per game for 30 bars)

Moles (7 increments for 54 possible mole positions)

Games with only 1 incremental number (represented as default value 0):

Conversions

Bytes to Floats

The output of the Random Number Generator (byteGenerator) function is a hexadecimal 32-byte hash. As explained under the cursor implementation, we use 4 bytes of data to generate a single game result. Each set of 4 bytes are used to generate floats between 0 and 1 (4 bytes are used instead of one to ensure a higher level of precision when generating the float.) It is with these generated floats that we derive the formal output of the provable fair algorithm before it is translated into game events.

// Convert the hash output from the rng byteGenerator to floats function generateFloats ({ serverSeed, clientSeed, nonce, cursor, count }) { // Random number generator function
 const rng = byteGenerator({ serverSeed, clientSeed, nonce, cursor }); // Declare bytes as empty array
 const bytes = [];

 // Populate bytes array with sets of 4 from RNG output while (bytes.length < count * 4) {
 bytes.push(rng.next().value);
 }

 // Return bytes as floats using lodash reduce function return _.chunk(bytes, 4).map(bytesChunk => bytesChunk.reduce((result, value, i) => { const divider = 256  (i + 1);
 const partialResult = value / divider;
 return result + partialResult;
 }, 0)
```

```
  );

Floats to Game Events

Where the process of generating random outputs is universal for all our games, it's at this point in the game outcome generation where a unique procedure is implemented to determine the translation from floats to game events.

The randomly float generated is multiplied by the possible remaining outcomes of the particular game being played. For example: In a game that uses a 52 card deck, this would simply be done by multiplying the float by 52. The result of this equation is then translated into a corresponding game event. For games where multiple game events are required, this process continues through each corresponding 4 bytes in the result chain that was generated using the described byteGenerator function.

Shuffle of Game Events

For games such as Keno, Mines, Pump, Chicken and Video Poker, where outcomes cannot be duplicated, we then utilise the Fisher-Yates shuffle algorithm. This procedure influences the conversion process from floats to game events because each time a game event is translated, the amount of possible remaining game event possibilities has been reduced for any remaining steps in the result chain.

As an example, in video poker, there is at first 52 cards available in the complete deck, and therefore the first game event is translated by multiplying the float by 52. Once this card has been dealt, there is only 51 remaining cards in the deck, and therefore the second card translation is done by multiplying the second float generated by 51. This continues in the same fashion until all the game events required have been generated.

With regards to Mines, Pump, Chicken and Keno, this is simply a matter of implementing the same process as explained with video poker but changing that to tiles or locations on the board or grid, ensuring that each game event generated, hasn’t already been done so beforehand in the chain of results.

Game Events

Game events are translation of the randomly generated floats into a relatable outcome that is game specific. This includes anything from the outcome of a dice roll to the order of the cards in a deck, or even the location of every bomb in a game of mines.

Below is a detailed explanation as to how we translate floats into events for each particular different game on our platform.

Blackjack, Hilo & Baccarat

In a standard deck of cards, there are 52 unique possible outcomes. When it comes to playing Blackjack, Hilo & Baccarat on our platform, we utilise an unlimited amount of decks when generating the game event, and therefore each turn of a card always has the same probability. To calculate this, we multiply each randomly generated float by 52, and then translate that result into a particular card, based on the following index:

// Index of 0 to 51 : ♦2 to ♣A const CARDS = [
 ♦2, ♥2, ♠2, ♣2, ♦3, ♥3, ♠3, ♣3, ♦4, ♥4,
 ♠4, ♣4, ♦5, ♥5, ♠5, ♣5, ♦6, ♥6, ♠6, ♣6,
 ♦7, ♥7, ♠7, ♣7, ♦8, ♥8, ♠8, ♣8, ♦9, ♥9,
```

 ♠9, ♣9, ♦10, ♥10, ♠10, ♣10, ♦J, ♥J, ♠J,
 ♣J, ♦Q, ♥Q, ♠Q, ♣Q, ♦K, ♥K, ♠K, ♣K, ♦A,
 ♥A, ♠A, ♣A
];

// Game event translation
const card = CARDS[Math.floor(float * 52)];
```

The only differentiating factor involved with these games is that with Hilo and Blackjack there is a cursor of 13 to generate 52 possible game events for cases where a large amount of cards are required to be dealt to the player, whereas when it comes to Baccarat we only ever need 6 game events generated to cover the most amount of playable cards possible.

Bars

In a game of Bars, 30 random floats between 0.0 and 1.0 are generated and used as the probability to select the winning bar from a predefined payout table. This payout table can be found at the footer of the Bars game and in the provable fairness verification calculation page.

Cases

In a Cases bet, a single random float between 0.0 and 1.0 is generated, which is used as the probability to select the winning case from a predefined payout table. This payout table can be found at the footer of the Cases game and in the provable fairness verification calculation page.

Drill

When it comes to Drill, we use an inverse formula to convert each random float into a crash point. The house edge (0.98) is divided by the complement of the float, creating a probability distribution where higher multipliers become exponentially rarer. If the float falls below 0.02, the drill stops instantly at 1.00x. This process is repeated three times to generate a crash point for each drill.

// Game event translation with houseEdge of 0.98 (2%)
Multiplier = u < 0.02 ? 1 : min(0.98 / (1 - u), 2000000)

Tarot

In a Tarot bet, three random floats between 0.0 and 1.0 are generated — one for each arcana card from the left to right. Each float determines which arcana card is selected from a predefined payout table. The first and third cards are drawn from the Minor Arcana (displayed as grey cards), while the second card is drawn from the Major Arcana (displayed as a gold card). The Minor and Major Arcana each have their own probability mapping ranges for each difficulty level. The payout table is available at the footer of the Tarot game and in the provable fairness verification calculation page. The final multiplier is calculated by multiplying the multipliers of all three generated arcana cards.

Packs

In a Packs bet, five random floats between 0.0 and 1.0 are generated, one for each card in the pack. Each float is used as the probability to select a card from a predefined payout table containing 240 unique cards with different multipliers and rarities. This payout table can be found at the footer of the Packs game and in the provable fairness verification calculation page.

Each of the 5 floats is independently mapped to a card using cumulative probability ranges, allowing for the possibility of receiving duplicate cards of the same rarity or multiplier within a single pack opening.

Darts

In a Darts bet, two random float between 0.0 and 1.0 are generated, which are used as the distance and rotation to position the dart on the board. The rotation value is represented by 0.0 being the top of the dartboard, 0.5 being the bottom, and 1.0 wrapping back to the top. The distance value is normalized with sqrt(float) / 2, and is the distance from the center from 0.0 to 0.5, with 0.0 being the center and 0.5 being the edge of the board.

Flip

A Flip game generates 20 separate game events, each representing the result of a coin flip. For each coin flip, if the value of the float is less than or equal to 0.5, the result is "tails", otherwise it is "heads".

Snakes

In a Snakes bet, 10 dice rolls are generated between integer values 1 and 6. The values are added together for each round for a total of 5 pairs of six sided dice rolls per round.

Diamonds

When playing Diamonds, there is 7 possible outcomes in the form of gems. To achieve this, we multiply each float generated by 7 before it is translated into a corresponding gem using the following index:

// Index of 0 to 6 : green to blue const GEMS = [ green, purple, yellow, red, cyan, pink, blue ];

// Game event translation
const gem = GEMS[Math.floor(float * 7)];
```

The player is then dealt 5 gems.

Dice Roll

In our version of dice, we cover a possible roll spread of 00.00 to 100.00, which has a range of 10,001 possible outcomes. The game event translation is done by multiplying the float by number of possible outcomes and then dividing by 100 so that the resulting number fits the constraints of our stated dice range.

// Game event translation
const roll = (float * 10001) / 100;

Primedice

Primedice uses the same dice roll mechanism as the regular Dice game, covering a possible roll spread of 00.00 to 100.00, which has a range of 10,001 possible outcomes. The game event translation is done by multiplying the float by number of possible outcomes and then dividing by 100 so that the resulting number fits the constraints of our stated dice range. The difference with Primedice is that it allows for more complex betting conditions including rolling between two numbers, rolling outside a range, or rolling between two pairs of numbers.

// Game event translation
const roll = (float * 10001) / 100;

Limbo

When it comes to Limbo, we use a two-step process. Firstly, we take the float and multiply it by both the maximum possible multiplier and the house edge. Then, in order to generate a game event that has probability distribution , we divide the maximum possible multiplier by the result of the first step to create the game event in the form of a crash point.

// Game event translation with houseEdge of 0.99 (1%)
const floatPoint = 1e8 / (float * 1e8) * houseEdge;

// Crash point rounded down to required denominator
const crashPoint = Math.floor(floatPoint * 100) / 100;

// Consolidate all crash points below 1
const result = Math.max(crashPoint, 1);

Plinko

For any game of Plinko, the generated outcome is based on the path of the falling ball. The game event determines the direction of the falling ball for each level in the falling process. Players can choose between 8 and 16 pins of play, which determines the number of game events required to generate a complete path from top to bottom. Since there are only two possible directions (left or right) the translation is done by multiplying each float by 2, which maps to the following index:

// Index of 0 to 1 : left to right

// Game event translation
const direction = CARDS[Math.floor(float * 2)];

Roulette Roll

Our Roulette is derived from the European version of the game where the wheel consists of 37 possible different pockets, ranging from 0 to 36. The game event is calculated by multiplying the float by 37 and then translated into a corresponding pocket using the following index:

// Index of 0 to 36
const POCKETS = [
 0, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9,
 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19,
 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29,
 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36
];

// Game event translation
const pocket = POCKETS[Math.floor(float * 37)];

Keno

Traditional Keno games require the selection of 10 possible game events in the form of hits on a board. To achieve this, we multiply each float by the number of possible unique squares that exist. Once a hit has been placed, it cannot be chosen again, which changes the pool size of the possible outcomes. This is done by subtracting the size of possible maximum outcomes by 1 for each iteration of game event result generated using the corresponding float provided, using the following index:

// Index of 0 to 39 : 1 to 40
const SQUARES = [
 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10,
 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20,
 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30,
 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40

```
];
const hit = SQUARES[Math.floor(float * 40)];
```

The fisher-yates shuffle implementation is utilised to prevent duplicate possible hits being generated.

Mines

A mine game is generated with 24 separate game events, in the form of mines on the board. Each float is multiplied by the number of possible unique tiles still remaining on the board. This is done by subtracting the number of tiles remaining by 1 for each iteration of game event result generated using the corresponding float provided. The location of the mine is plotted using a grid position from left to right, top to bottom.

The fisher-yates shuffle implementation is utilised to prevent duplicate possible hits being generated. Between 1 and 24 game event results are used, based on the settings chosen.

Moles

In a Moles bet, the player selects between 1 and 6 moles on a board of 7 holes. Each round, mole positions are generated using a fisher-yates shuffle across the 7 holes, consuming one float per mole. New positions are generated each round, with a game lasting up to 8 rounds (1 mole) or 9 rounds (2-6 moles).

Pump

A Pump game is generated with 24 separate game events, in the form of pops at each round. Each float is multiplied by the number of rounds remaining. This is done by subtracting the number of rounds remaining by 1 for each pump.

The fisher-yates shuffle implementation is utilised to prevent duplicate possible hits being generated. Between 1 and 24 game event results are used, based on the settings chosen.

Chicken

A Chicken game is generated with 20 separate game events, in the form of deaths at each round. Each float is multiplied by the number of rounds remaining. This is done by subtracting the number of rounds remaining by 1 for each step.

The fisher-yates shuffle implementation is utilised to prevent duplicate possible hits being generated. Between 1 and 20 game event results are used, based on the settings chosen.

Rock Paper Scissors

Rock Paper Scissors rounds are generated individually for an unlimited number of rounds, except for in autobet which is limited to 20 max rounds. A number between 0 and 2 is generated for each round and assigned to rock (0), paper (1) or scissors (2).

Video Poker

A video poker game involves 52 separate game events, in the form of cards in a deck. Each float is multiplied by the number of possible cards still remaining in the deck. This is done by subtracting the number of cards remaining by 1 for each iteration of game event result generated using the corresponding float provided. This is done by selecting a card from the following index:

// Index of 0 to 51 : ♦2 to ♣A const CARDS = [
```

 ♦2, ♥2, ♠2, ♣2, ♦3, ♥3, ♠3, ♣3, ♦4, ♥4,
 ♠4, ♣4, ♦5, ♥5, ♠5, ♣5, ♦6, ♥6, ♠6, ♣6,
 ♦7, ♥7, ♠7, ♣7, ♦8, ♥8, ♠8, ♣8, ♦9, ♥9,
 ♠9, ♣9, ♦10, ♥10, ♠10, ♣10, ♦J, ♥J, ♠J,
 ♣J, ♦Q, ♥Q, ♠Q, ♣Q, ♦K, ♥K, ♠K, ♣K, ♦A,
 ♥A, ♠A, ♣A
];

// Game event translation
const card = CARDS[Math.floor(float * 52)];
```

The fisher-yates shuffle implementation is utilised to prevent duplicate cards being generated.

Wheel

The game event number is calculated by multiplying the float by the possible outcomes in the segment. It is then used to determine the game event result as a multiplier, using the following index:

// Index per payout configuration const PAYOUTS = {

Scarab Spin / Tome of Life

The game event number is calculated by multiplying the float by the possible outcomes in the reel. The first 4 reels have a length of 30 possible outcomes, whilst the last reel has 41. The game event determines the central stop position for each reel. This game consists of 5 game event numbers, until the case of a bonus round, where more are generated.

Blue Samurai

Blue Samurai slots has 3 different types of spins. Regular, bonus and special.

For regular and bonus spins, 18 floats from 0 to 1 are generated from your hash. Unlike Scarab Spin slots, which has fixed reels, Samurai slots has dynamic reels, meaning each symbol is generated from the corresponding float that was assigned to it.

We use weighted random sampling to assign each float to its corresponding tile, in the same order, moving down the reels, from left to right. Each symbol has its own fixed probability / chance of appearing in any one tile, with the outer 2 reels having a different set of probabilities to the inner 3 reels. For a bit more information on how symbols are selected, see fitness proportionate selection algorithm to learn more.

Special spins are slightly different. For a start only 12 floats are taken from your hash, as the outer reels are disabled. Between each special spin, any samurai symbols stay in place for the remainder of the game, with the payout being the final count of samurais. This means that if you were to have for example 1 samurai stick in the first spin - we'd technically only need 11 floats for the subsequent spin. For the sake of simplicity in the probably fair model, we just generate 12 floats every time, and if the float that was allocated for a tile has a stuck samurai from a previous spin, then that float is not used at all.

Dragon Tower

A Dragon Tower game is generated with 9 separate game events, in the form of the levels up the tower. We generate a number of eggs depending on the difficulty for each level, and have a range of tiles the egg can be on also represented by an integer.

Each float generated is then converted to integers to determine the egg location on each row. For example: A level on difficulty easy would be represented like this: [0, 1, 3] - eggs would be present at tile 1 and 2 and 4.

// count represents the number of eggs
// size represents the number of possible squares
```

const LEVEL_MAP = {
 easy: { count: 3, size: 4 }, medium: { count: 2, size: 3 },
 hard: { count: 1, size: 2 },
 expert: { count1, size: 3 },
 master: { count: 1, size: 4 },

The fisher-yates shuffle implementation is utilised to prevent duplicate eggs on a row.

Our independent casino review team has taken a detailed look at Stake Casino in this review and evaluated its qualities and drawbacks in accordance with our casino review process . In assessing this casino's safety, our review team has considered crucial factors such as the fairness of its Terms and Conditions, licenses, player complaints, customer support, limits, and other relevant aspects to determine where it falls on the spectrum from safe and legit casino to a potential scam .

We've worked out the casino's Safety Index, a numerical and verbal representation of online casinos' safety and fairness, based on these discoveries. The higher the Safety Index, the greater the assurance of playing and receiving winnings without problems. An Above average Safety Index of 7.9 makes Stake Casino a good choice for many players. Just keep in mind that some casinos do rank higher. Proceed with reading our Stake Casino review to learn more about this casino. This will help you make an informed decision about whether this casino is right for you.

Fairness and safety of Stake Casino

We calculate a casino's Safety Index based on an elaborate formula that takes into consideration a wide range of information that we have collected and assessed in our review. These involve the casino's estimated revenues, complaints from the players, T&Cs, blacklists, and so on.

In our review of Stake Casino, we meticulously evaluated and analyzed the Terms and Conditions of Stake Casino. To our knowledge, there are no rules or clauses that could be considered unfair or predatory. This is a great sign, as any such rules could potentially be used against players to justify not paying out winnings to them.

Stake Casino is a very big online casino based on our estimates or collected information. Considering its size, this casino has a very low sum of disputed winnings in complaints from players (or it has not received any complaints whatsoever). We consider both the casino's size and the number of player complaints and how they correlate, seeing as bigger casinos tend to receive more complaints due to the larger number of players.

As far as we know, no relevant casino blacklists include Stake Casino. If a casino is included on a blacklist such as our Casino Guru blacklist , this could hint that the casino has committed some kind of misconduct towards its customers. We urge players to keep this in mind when searching for an online casino to play at.

In our comprehensive review of all relevant aspects, Stake Casino has attained an Above average Safety Index of 7.9 . This casino might be an adequate option for some players, however, keep in mind that there are other casinos that prioritize fair treatment and safety of their customers to a much higher degree.

Note: To the best of our knowledge, Stake Casino is associated with 1 other online casino. Taking into account the connection between these casinos, we factored in the qualities of the associated casinos when evaluating the Safety Index of Stake Casino.

Terms and Conditions of Stake Casino evaluated

Our team goes through each casino's Terms and Conditions as part of our review to assess their fairness . In T&Cs of many casinos, we come across certain clauses, which we perceive as unjust or overtly predatory. In some cases, these give the casino the possibility to justify withholding player winnings.

We did not find any unfair or predatory rules in the Terms and Conditions of Stake Casino during our review.

Player complaints filed about Stake Casino

Our casino assessment approach relies heavily on player complaints, which provide us with a comprehensive understanding of struggles experienced by players and how casinos address them . When calculating the Safety Index of each casino, we consider all complaints received through our Complaint Resolution Center , as well as those sourced from other channels.

We currently have 5 complaints about this casino in our database. Because of these complaints, we've given this casino 694 black points in total. You can find more information about all of the complaints and black points in the 'Safety Index explained' part of this review.

Stake Casino user feedback and reviews

On Casino Guru, users can rate and review online casinos to voice their opinions, feedback, or experience. Based on these, we generate a total user feedback that varies between Terrible and Excellent.

Judging by the 82 user reviews given to Stake Casino, it has a Good User feedback score. You can find the reviews in the User reviews part of this page.

Note: It's important to note that user reviews may not always provide an objective reflection of the casino's quality. Instances exist where casinos write fake reviews to boost their user feedback score, while some dissatisfied players leave multiple negative reviews to tarnish the casino's reputation. Our best efforts are put into filtering these out and calculating an objectively accurate user feedback score; nonetheless, we do not include user feedback in our Safety Index calculation.

Probablemente sea uno de los casinos más populares que existen, y creo que ya se ha ganado una buena reputación entre muchos jugadores. Pero personalmente hay dos cosas que no me gustaron. La primera es la verificación obligatoria, que la verdad no me convence mucho. La segunda es que las actualizaciones del sitio tardan demasiado. Fuera de eso, no tengo grandes quejas, es un buen casino, aunque esos dos detalles me molestan un poco

Llevo un buen rato usando Stake y en general es de las plataformas más sólidas y rápidas si te gusta jugar con criptomonedas. La interfaz corre súper fluida tanto en computadora como en el navegador del celular, y su sección de juegos originales Stake Originals como Mines, Plinko o Crash junto con su catálogo de más de 3,000 slots y apuestas deportivas es de lo más completo que hay. Además, los depósitos y retiros en cripto se procesan prácticamente al instante y sin límites máximos.

Retiros súper rápidos e ilimitados

Sistema VIP y torneos constantes

Seguridad y juegos originales

Atención al cliente efectiva

Restricciones de proveedores por región

Sin bono de bienvenida tradicional

Curva de aprendizaje para novatos y KYC

Stake.us lost my trust completely. I received no automatic reward notification for its Halloween event. When I contacted support, they told me twice that I hadn't finished in the top 40. Only after I challenged them did they check the correct currency and produce a 1,500 SC coupon. Had I trusted their answer, I would have walked away believing I'd won nothing. Even afterward, they couldn't tell me my exact placement, wouldn't confirm my official entry count, and refused to provide a contact for the responsible team. Confidently wrong support. No meaningful escalation. Results customers cannot verify. Receiving my reward doesn't excuse any of that. I'm done with Stake.us. Based on this experience, I strongly recommend avoiding its promotions and taking your money elsewhere.

Support denied my prize twice. Pushing back uncovered 1,500 SC.

I made a 5,000 TRY bank transfer for a deposit into my Stake.com account on October 18, 2026, at 12:35. The deposit has not appeared in my balance. I contacted live support, but I felt that the staff did not take my issue seriously. The problem remains unresolved. I have a bank transfer receipt and want the deposit credited to my account or refunded. Based on this experience and the support I received, I would not recommend Stake.com.

Stake.us has become one of my favorite sweepstakes casinos and probably the one I use most often. I've had quite a few good sessions here, including several redemptions worth over $500 The redemption process has been very quick in my experience compared with many other sites I've tried. Verification was also easy for me and I got through it without any real hassle. Another thing I like is that the game library keeps changing. New games show up regularly, so there's usually something different to try instead of playing the same few titles all the time. Overall, Stake.us is definitely one of the sweepstakes sites I come back to the most.

Fast redemption process

Easy verification without much hassle

New games are added regularly

Large enough game selection to keep things interesting

The best option would probably be to contact the casino directly and describe the bug in detail, including what exactly happened and which game you were playing. Could you briefly explain what kind of bug you encountered? Have you already reported it to the casino and asked what options you have or whether anything can be done about it?

The Issue: A client-side frontend input-mask race condition and event-listener glitch occurring specifically on Linux using the Wayland compositor and Mozilla Firefox. What Happened: When attempting to clear an existing value and rapidly type a decimal amount (such as entering $0.23) on Stake's bet input element, the input mask swallows the initial decimal point (.) keystroke. Instead of formatting as 0.23, it strips the dot and multiplies/concatenates the input into an unintended $23.00 wager before the user has a chance to correct it. Evidence: Two distinct video recordings were captured—one isolating the bug occurring exclusively on Stake's wager input field, and a control video proving that Firefox and the Linux/Wayland system environment handle decimal delimiters normally across other websites and standard web forms, confirming the bug is strictly tied to Stake's frontend code. Previous Reports & Casino Response Live Support Interaction: The issue was initially reported to Stake's live support along with the video evidence. However, support agents dismissed the proofs with generic boilerplate responses, blamed browser quirks, and refused to investigate or escalate the matter.

This is much more useful than a general description because you've documented a reproducible sequence and also recorded comparison videos. I'd just be a little careful with presenting the exact technical cause, such as a race condition or event-listener bug as confirmed unless Stake's developers have actually verified that. But if entering 0.23 can repeatedly turn into 23.00 specifically on Stake while the same input works normally elsewhere, then the behavior itself is definitely worth investigating. Since live support apparently didn't escalate it, I'd try to get the videos and exact reproduction steps in front of Stake's technical team rather than continue debating it with frontline chat. If this bug actually caused a real wager to be placed for a much larger amount than you intended, mention that clearly as well, because then it becomes more than just a UI bug report and there may be a concrete disputed loss to review.
